1. INTRODUCTION

Tourism has grown to become Malaysia’s second largest sector contributing to national income after the manufacturing sector [1]. According to United Nation World Tourism Organization, Malaysia has been the most visited country for last three consecutive years from the year 2009 to 2011. In 2011, Malaysia was visited by 24.7 million tourists and receipt USD 19 billion [2]. The sub-industries of tourism contributes that contributed to this growth are eco-tourism, medical tourism and cultural or heritage tourism. These sub-industries of tourism are supported by various tourism products. One of them is homestay.

In 2004, Ministry of Culture, Arts and Tourism Malaysia (MOCAT) has been renamed as Ministry of Tourism Malaysia. The Ministry of Tourism Malaysia was assigned to coordinate and implement government policies and strategies pertaining tourism industry, as well as introduced homestay as an alternative accommodation offered for the tourists to overcome the problem unable to accommodate the overflowing numbers of tourists arrivals by the big hotel and other entrepreneurs [3]. As a result of the continuous efforts of Ministry of Tourism Malaysia, the tourism industry had experienced a rapid growth and gained importance in Malaysia’s economy [4].

Homestay is a tourism product which was introduced to give a chance to the tourist to stay with selected local family and experience their daily lifestyle and learn their cultures. Ministry of Tourism Malaysia does not list the homestays as a part of accommodation industry because of its concept is more focused on lifestyle and experience which include culture and economic activity [2]. Currently, there are 140 homestay with 227 villages throughout Malaysia with total of 3,264 houses offering 4,463 rooms until June 2009 [5].

Homestay has large contribution towards the growth of ecotourism and heritage tourism. This is because ecotourism and heritage tourism was introduced to promote nature, culture and adventure aspects of Malaysia. Malaysia has many ranges of different rain forest ecosystems. Malaysia also has many ethnic heritages of Malay, Chinese, Indians, Kadazan, Dayak and many more. Each ethnic has their own unique culture and believes respect to wedding ceremony, games, foods, lifestyle and festival celebrations. Homestay is one of the effective medium for Malaysians to share their lifestyle and cultures to outsiders or tourists. So, Malaysia views this industry as an industry that has unique Malaysian appeal and proactively supports the growth of its activity. Malaysian government also views this industry as an opportunity for rural community to participate in tourism industry and encourages the households to grab this opportunity as chance to supplement and generate household income [6].

Therefore, this research aim to identify the motivation factors that encourage the growing numbers of homestay entrepreneur particularly in the state of Johor, as well as the barriers that constraint them in managing homestay business. The results will be used in enhancing the tourism industry especially in the homestay tourism business.

2. LITERATURE REVIEW

This section explains the relevant definitions related to homestay industry; scenario of homestay industry in international, national and State of Johor levels; comparison between homestay business of Malaysia and bed & breakfast of the foreign countries and homestay entrepreneurial factors.

2.1 Definition of Homestay

According to [2], homestay as “an arrangement that provides accommodation for students or tourists in the home of the family in exchange for payment where the trip includes a homestay in a traditional villages, accommodation arrangement for students and school groups; and live with a local family in homestay and learn the language and culture of the locals”.

Thus, homestay is an accommodation that ensures local community’s sustainable wellbeing in term of economic, social and culture aspects where the main concept which homestay is representing is the diversification of local people to attract the visitors [7].

2.2 Definition of Enterpreneur and Homestay Enterprises

The word entrepreneurship is derived from the French word ‘entreprendre’ which means ‘to undertake’. The entrepreneur is the innovator who introduces something new into the economy [8], the decision makers in a articular situation and utilizes opportunity. So, the entrepreneur is someone who is willing to take risk, grab the available opportunity, have desire to own their own time, opportunity or friend’s other people’s success and desire for a personal purpose are rented to those who wish to stay in those vacant rooms. Therefore, those vacant rooms have become a source of income to the owner of the house [10].

In contrast, in western countries, the rural tourism concepts also known as agriculture tourism or agro-tourism which enables tourists to enjoy the lifestyle of a farmer [11]. Agro-tourism is different from normal the Homestay Programs because it doesn’t involve a whole community of the village in arranging tourism activity due to the farms are well off in a large land area. So, agro-tourism only involves the families of the farmers in arranging the tourism activities.

2.4 The Malaysian Homestays

Homestay is a new industry in Malaysia. The Malaysian homestays which operates under the Ministry of Tourism Malaysia’s Homestay Program have its particular definition and concepts are as follows:-

(1) These homestays are meant to provide a place to stay and serve the tourists with home-made foods and delicacies and take care of the tourist like their own family members;

(2) The Malaysia Homestay Program offers a unique concept of staying accommodation by pressing on giving special services in the house of the villagers who participated as host family in this program.

(3) Homestay also plays an important role in development of other tourism products like heritage tourism, nature tourism and agro-tourism by promoting and enabling tourists to enjoy those products through the Homestay Program’s activities.

(4) The Malaysia Homestay Program offers the tourists the tourists to enjoy and learn the Malaysia lifestyle and culture directly by living it.

2.5 Entrepreneurial factors

According to [6], the homestay entrepreneurial factors can be categorized into pull factors and push factors. The possible pull factors that shall cause an individual to involve in homestay industry that have been highlighted in past studies are desire to generate more income, passion in homestay business, to prove one’s own ability to succeed, personal satisfaction, pursue one’s interest in entrepreneurship, desire to own a business, desire to have control over what one is doing, desire for more flexibility in managing own time, opportunity or potential that available homestay industry, inspired by friend’s and other people’s success and desire for a balance lifestyle and desire for a balance between work and family.

While, the push factors that promote the homestay entrepreneurs are economic depression, unemployment of the host, retrenched, dissatisfaction with former job, lack of job security in previous job and unsatisfactory income level received in former job.

3. RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

In this study, a quantitative research strategy was adopted as a strategy for the data collection. The survey was carried out within State of Johor, Malaysia and the respondents were 2141 homestays operators who were registered under Ministry of Tourism Malaysia, and actively participated in homestays industry.

From the table, generally, the main reasons for people to involve in homestay entrepreneurship business are highly motivated by to improve their financial status. Moreover, the homestay entrepreneurship business also offers a sense of psychological empowerment that could boost the self-esteem. This finding is consistent with the research conducted by [6] whereby the research concludes that the sources of income were the dominant factor that encouraged entrepreneurs to start with homestay business in Malaysia.

4.3 Barriers of Homestay Entrepreneurship

From the interview conducted with six homestay coordinators, there were several barriers or challenges faced by the homestay coordinators in managing the homestay including financial problem, management, maintenance and communication. Figure 1 summarizes the challenges in managing the homestay.

1 Of the total 478 homestay operators in State of Johor Bahru, only 214 respondents were participated in this study. The number of samples was sufficient enough to make a generalization for research finding.
From the results, financial problem was identified as a main challenge in managing homestay because homestay industry is unable to sustain the income every month. Based on the occupancy report, most of the homestays were occupied on seasonal basis, for example during school holiday (local and international) and public holiday. Moreover, management was also identified as a challenge in managing homestay due to differences in visitors’ culture and living style. In addition, majority respondents agreed that the maintenance and communication were the least challenges in managing homestays.

5. CONCLUSION

This paper examined current practice of homestays entrepreneurship in the State of Johor, as well as the drivers and barriers factor behind the successfulness of the business. From the results, it can be concluded that the number of homestays entrepreneurship is significantly growing in the future. Moreover, there were several factor that motivated the homestay entrepreneur including; Potential in the business, Pursue own interest - to own business, Flexibility to manage time, Desire to generate more income, Personal satisfaction, passion in business, Balance life style, Wanting to prove ability to succeed, and Inspired by friend’s success; and several barriers that constraints towards successfulness of homestay entrepreneurship including; financial problem, management problem, maintenance problem and communication problem.
